

The Unitarian Universalist Service Committee advances human rights and social justice around the world, partnering with those who confront unjust power structures and mobilizing to challenge oppressive policies.

Unitarian Universalist Service Committee
689 Massachusetts Avenue
Cambridge, MA 02139-3302

uusc.org/justicesunday | development@uusc.org | 617-868-6600

Economic Justice Sunday

Reflect,
understand,

and act —
today and every day!

Economic Justice Sunday

Workers' rights are human rights and in countries throughout the world, many workers are either employed in environments that violate their most basic human rights or are denied the right to work entirely. In wealthy countries like the United States, as well as in countries of the Global South, there may not be enough formal jobs for everyone who wants or needs one. Consequently, they struggle to earn a living, support their families, and live with dignity.

Justice Sunday is a program of the Unitarian Universalist Service Committee (UUSC). Through this year's program focused on economic justice, you can learn about economic issues in your own community and help people in Kenya and other areas of the Global South to protect workers' rights.

Economic Justice Sunday connects us with larger Unitarian Universalist efforts to promote economic justice this spring. Economic Justice Sunday highlights UUSC's partnership with the Kenya National Alliance of Street Vendors and Informal Traders (KENASVIT), which provides a collective voice for informal workers in Kenya and further empowers them by making them aware of their rights. KENASVIT also offers bookkeeping skills training and access to revolving-loan funds so informal street vendors can expand their businesses, increase their incomes, and lead lives in which they are less vulnerable to violations of their rights.

To learn more about Economic Justice Sunday, including UUSC's partnership with KENASVIT, visit uusc.org/justicesunday.

For a full list of Economic Justice Sunday resources, visit uusc.org/justicesundayresources.

To make a donation in support of communities in Kenya and in the Global South, visit uusc.org/justicesundaydonate or send a check to the following:

UUSC Justice Sunday
PO Box 808
Newark, NJ 07101-0808

uusc.org/justicesunday • development@uusc.org

Economic Justice Sunday

Workers' rights are human rights and in countries throughout the world, many workers are either employed in environments that violate their most basic human rights or are denied the right to work entirely. In wealthy countries like the United States, as well as in countries of the Global South, there may not be enough formal jobs for everyone who wants or needs one. Consequently, they struggle to earn a living, support their families, and live with dignity.

Justice Sunday is a program of the Unitarian Universalist Service Committee (UUSC). Through this year's program focused on economic justice, you can learn about economic issues in your own community and help people in Kenya and other areas of the Global South to protect workers' rights.

Economic Justice Sunday connects us with larger Unitarian Universalist efforts to promote economic justice this spring. Economic Justice Sunday highlights UUSC's partnership with the Kenya National Alliance of Street Vendors and Informal Traders (KENASVIT), which provides a collective voice for informal workers in Kenya and further empowers them by making them aware of their rights. KENASVIT also offers bookkeeping skills training and access to revolving-loan funds so informal street vendors can expand their businesses, increase their incomes, and lead lives in which they are less vulnerable to violations of their rights.

To learn more about Economic Justice Sunday, including UUSC's partnership with KENASVIT, visit uusc.org/justicesunday.

For a full list of Economic Justice Sunday resources, visit uusc.org/justicesundayresources.

To make a donation in support of communities in Kenya and in the Global South, visit uusc.org/justicesundaydonate or send a check to the following:

UUSC Justice Sunday
PO Box 808
Newark, NJ 07101-0808

uusc.org/justicesunday • development@uusc.org